Foreword

I am very delighted to release this Manual as a testimony of determination of the National Police Service to put in place necessary measures for the maintenance of law and order and stability necessary for the conduct of an election and to protect and uphold the rights of all persons under any written law relating to elections.

The election cycle in Kenya is high pressure, competitive and often emotive. We are a country of diversity with over 44 tribes with different customs and beliefs. As such security challenges are dynamic and factors change from one county to the other depending on tribal composition during elections.

The immediate responsibility for all acts which touch upon the conduct of an election rests upon the Independent Electoral and Boundaries Commission. The Police have a triple function: first, the maintenance of law and order, secondly, provision of security during the election process and thirdly, the detection of election offences and the bringing of offenders to justice.

In the discharge of their first function, the maintenance of law and order, the Police are under the overall and independent command of the Inspector General through the chain of command. In the discharge of their second and third functions, the provision of security during election process and the detection of election offences and the bringing of offenders to justice, the Police are responsible to the law.

This Manual is intended to be a reference handbook for Police Commanders to ensure that the Police roles and responsibilities during elections are carried out in a professional and consistent manner. It considers the potential impact of insecurity on the integrity of elections and provides a set of considerations regarding election security planning and management practices or procedures.

It is envisaged that the Manual will be applied by all Police Commanders including Police Stations across the country during elections. Adherence to the guidelines provided by this manual will enhance police preparedness and response mechanisms to election security in a collaborative and coordinated manner. I encourage all Police Commanders of the National Police Service to read it and to ensure that security challenges and threats that may compromise the elections are effectively and efficiently managed.

Acknowledgement

The development of this Election Security Management Manual for Police Commanders was made possible by collaboration between the National Police Service, Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions (ODPP), Judiciary Working Committee on Election Preparations, Independent Electoral Commission, and National Cohesion and Integration Commission.

Special acknowledgement goes to the Inspector General of National Police Service Mr. Hillary N. Mutyambai, nsc (AU) and other members of the Joint Service Board Mr. Noor Y. Gabow, EBS, OGW, Deputy Inspector General, Administration Police Service, Mr. George Kinoti, CBS, Director of Criminal Investigations and Ms. Rosemary Kuraru, AIG, Director of Human Capital Management.

The Manual is a result of tireless efforts of many police officers. Particular thanks go to the Director of Operations (KPS) Mr. Rashid Abdullahi Yakub. We further appreciate Mr. Dominic Kisavi CP and members of Election Security Secretariat including all Regional, County and Sub-County Police Commanders and Officers who coordinated participation of the police and stakeholders. We acknowledge this team together with Dr. Charles Otieno who supported the drafting process.

The Manual would have not been possible without the technical and financial support by our development partners. Special acknowledgment goes to the UKAid for financial assistance through the REIVENT Programme.

About this Manual

The role played by the police during elections cannot be underestimated. A secure electoral environment is crucial to ensuring the overall integrity of the electoral process. The police have the ultimate responsibility to maintain a secure and peaceful environment and to preserve law and order, including bringing anyone aiming to disrupt the process to justice. They also have other roles and responsibilities including engaging with other stakeholders involved in organizing elections.

This Manual is intended as a reference handbook for Police Commanders to ensure that the Police roles and responsibilities during elections are carried out in a professional and consistent manner. It considers the potential impact of insecurity on the integrity of elections and provides a set of considerations regarding election security planning and management practices or procedures.

Amendments to this Manual shall be made by the Joint Service Board in consultation with Police Commanders and other stakeholders as need arise. The Manual may be reviewed once every election cycle as necessary depending on the prevailing trend on election security management; however, the Manual may be reviewed as need arises.

MANDATE OF THE NATIONAL POLICE SERVICE

The National Police Service (NPS) draws its mandate or functions from the Constitution of Kenya 2010 and the National Police Service Act, 2011 which recognizes the significant roles security agencies play in promoting public safety and maintenance of law and order. The NPS comprises of the Kenya Police Service, Administration Police Service, Directorate of Criminal Investigations and Internal Affairs Unit whose functions are outlined in Section 24, 27, 35, and 87 of the NPS Act respectively.

Kenya Police Service (KPS)

The functions of Kenya Police Service (KPS) include provision of public safety and security, assistance to the public when in need; maintenance of law and order; preservation of peace; protection of life and property; investigation of crimes; collection and collation of criminal intelligence; prevention and detection of crimes; apprehension of offenders; collection of intelligence, enforcement of all laws and regulations within its mandate. The role of KPS during elections is to maintain a secure and peaceful environment and to preserve law and order, including apprehension of anyone acting/planning to disrupt the electoral process to justice.

Administration Police Service (APS)

The functions of APS include protective and border security as well as combating cattle rustling. Its role during elections includes preservation of peace; protection of life and property; provision of border patrol and border security; prevention and investigation of stock theft cases; protection of Government property, vital installations and strategic points and rendering support to the Government agencies in the enforcement of administrative functions and the exercise of lawful duties.

Directorate of Criminal Investigations (DCI)

The Directorate collect and provide criminal intelligence; undertake investigations of serious crimes including homicide, narcotic crimes, human trafficking, money laundering, terrorism, economic crimes, piracy, organized crime, and cyber-crime among others. Its role during elections focuses on investigations of hate speech, political incitement and content, and sexual violence related to elections.

Internal Affairs Unit (IAU)

The Unit promotes adherence to the highest standards of police conduct and fosters mutual respect between the Service and the community it serves by fairly, objectively, and neutrally investigating complaints that allege misconduct by police. It's role during elections is to receive and investigates complaints against the police including election security personnel who are members of the National Police Service.

CHAPTER 1: BACKGROUND

1.1 General Elections

According to the Constitution of Kenya 2010, the Independent Electoral and Boundaries Commission (IEBC) is mandated to conduct Presidential, Parliamentary and County Government elections in a General Election on the second Tuesday in August every 5th year. The roles of each of the six elective positions provided by the Constitution are summarized below.

1.1.1 The President

The President is the Head of State and Government; and also, Commander-in-Chief of the Defence Forces. The President is a symbol of national unity, elected by universal adult suffrage through secret ballot. In order for the President's election to be conclusive, the winning candidate has to obtain at least 50% plus one of the total votes cast in the elections as provided for in Article 138 (4) (a) and (b) of the Constitution of Kenya and at least 25% of votes cast in each of more than half of the Counties.

1.1.2 The Senator

The Senator represents a County and is elected by the registered voters in the County with each County constituting a single member Constituency. The Senator participates in the law-making function of Parliament by considering, debating and approving bills concerning Counties. The Senator also participates in the oversight of State Officers by considering and determining any resolution to remove the President or Deputy President from office in accordance with Article 145 of the Constitution.

The Senate consists of 68 Members with 47 of them being elected from each County; 16 being women Senators nominated by their respective political parties; one man and one woman representing the youth; one man and one-woman representing persons with disabilities; and the Speaker who is an ex-officio member.

1.1.3 The County Governor

The Governor is the Head of the County Executive; and is elected by voters registered in the County. The functions of the County Governor include administering and managing the affairs of the County; appointing members of the County

Executive Committee following approval by the County Assembly; and appointing members of the Urban and Municipal Boards for towns and municipalities within their areas of jurisdiction.

1.1.4 Member of the National Assembly

A Member of the National Assembly is elected by the registered voters of the Constituency. A Member of the National Assembly deliberates on and resolves issues of concern to the electorate; makes laws; determines the allocation of national revenue between the National and County governments; determines allocation of funds for expenditure by the National Government and other State organs; exercises oversight over national revenue and expenditure; reviews the conduct of the President, Deputy President and other State Officers; initiates the process of removing them from office; exercises oversight over State organs; and approves declaration of war and extension of States of Emergency.

The National Assembly consists of 290 members elected from each constituency by voters in the constituency, 47 County Women Members to the National Assembly elected from each County by voters, 12 members nominated by parliamentary political parties according to their proportionate membership in the National Assembly; and the Speaker, who is an ex officio member.

1.1.5 County Woman Member to the National Assembly

The County Woman Member to the National Assembly is elected by voters registered in a county, with the county representing a single member constituency. The County Woman Member to the National Assembly deliberates on and resolves issues of concern to the electorate; makes laws; determines the allocation of national revenue between the National and County governments; determines allocation of funds for expenditure by the National Government and other State organs; exercises oversight over national revenue and expenditure; reviews the conduct of the President, Deputy President and other State Officers; initiates the process of removing them from office; exercises oversight over State organs; and approves declaration of war and extension of States of Emergency.

1.1.6 Member of County Assembly

The MCA is elected by the electorate in the Ward and they represent the wards at the County Assembly. A total of 1,450 MCAs are elected throughout the country.

1.2 Electoral Cycle

The electoral cycle covers pre-election, election and post-election periods. The cycle continues from one election to the other. Therefore, the conduct of election is a process and not an event. The completion of one cycle initiates the next. Under the Constitution, each election cycle is five years and is certainly not a static period.

1.2.1 Pre-election period

The pre-election period involves Voter registration, Voter education, Training of election officials, Political Parties' Primaries, Nomination of candidates and electoral campaigns.

1.2.2 Election period

The election period involves Polling, Counting of votes, verification of results, declaration of winners.

1.2.3 Post election period

The Post-election period involves Petitions and appeals. It also involves swearing in of the President and other winners.

CHAPTER 2: ELECTIONS IN KENYA

2.1 Types of Elections

There are two main types of elections; namely:

- i. General Election
- ii. Referendum

2.2.1 General Elections

The General Elections are held every fifth year at the lapse of the term of the President, Members of Parliament, Governors and Members of the County Assembly. Sometimes health incapacitation, death of an elected President before assuming office, Member of Parliament or County Assembly and other legal provisions may trigger the following elections.

Re-run election

Re-run election for Presidential Elections can be held when a presidential election does not produce a clear winner. This means that no presidential candidate has attained more than half of all the votes cast and at least 25% of the votes cast in each of more than half of the counties. It is a fresh election held thirty days after a previous Presidential election which had no clear winner. The candidates for this election are the best two candidates who score the highest and the second highest votes.

Special Presidential Election

Special Presidential election may be occasioned by death of the President before assuming the office; death of or incapacity of the Deputy President to assume office following a vacancy in the office of the President.

By-election

By-election may be occasioned by a vacancy in Parliament and County Assemblies. A by-election is also occasioned by death of, or incapacity of the Deputy Governor to assume office following a vacancy in the office of the Governor or if a vacancy occurs in the office of the Governor and Deputy Governor at the same time.

Recall election

Re-call election is an election that results from a judgment or a ruling by a High Court following a petition by the electorate.

2.2.2 Referendum

Referendum is an election in which the electorate are asked to give their opinion about or decide an important political or social question. This may include amending the Constitution in regard to:

- i. the supremacy of the Constitution
- ii. the territory of Kenya
- iii. the sovereignty of the people;
- iv. the national values and principles of governance
- v. the Bill of Rights;
- vi. the term of office of the President;
- vii. Commissions and independent offices.

CHAPTER 3: ELECTORAL PROCESS

3.1 Introduction

The importance of the role played by the police during elections cannot be underestimated. The Police have the ultimate responsibility to maintain a secure and peaceful environment and to preserve law and order, including bringing anyone aiming to disrupt the electoral process to justice. They also have other roles and responsibilities including engaging with other stakeholders involved in organizing elections.

The attention of Police Commanders is particularly directed to the following electoral processes which the Police may be called upon to provide security and support the IEBC in discharging their mandate on elections.

3.2 Voter Registration

Voter registration is the process of capturing personal details of the eligible voters including biometrics for purposes of creating a register of voters to be used in elections. The Police may be required to deploy security personnel during the voter registration process.

3.3 Nomination by Political Parties

Nomination by Political Parties refers to the process where by Political Parties identify their members as candidates to vie for various elective positions. It also involves submission of party list to commission by Political Parties. Different Political Parties have different processes of nominating their candidates based on their constitution, rules and regulations. Political Parties may request the Police to deploy security personnel during their party nominations.

3.4 Election Campaigns and Campaign Period

It is the process through which Political Parties and candidates popularize themselves after they have been cleared by the IEBC to contest in an election. In doing this, they among others: hold meetings and rallies; organize meet-the-people tours; conduct road shows; distribute campaign materials; and use the media to reach out to potential voters.

The campaigns period is the period designated by the Commission for official campaign for a specified election. Persons entitled to campaign in elections are candidates; appointed campaigners and supporters of the candidates.

Public and State officers are prohibited by the Elections Acts and the Political Parties Act from supporting or campaigning for a political view-point, party or candidate in any election.

The Police is expected to maintain law and order during this period. They are required to collaborate with IEBC during electioneering period to ensure that security challenges and threats that may compromise the elections are effectively and efficiently managed.

3.5 Polling

Polling refers to the casting or recording of votes in an election on a predetermined date and time during which voters choose their preferred leaders. Polling may also take place on other dates determined by the commission with regard to the by-elections, referendum and recall elections. Voting, as is required by law should start at 6.00 am and close at 5.00pm. However, all voters on the queue at 5pm will be allowed to vote thereafter. The Police are required to provide security to safeguard the polling process at the polling stations.

3.6 Counting and Announcement of Result at the Polling Station

Polling stations closes at 5.00pm. The Presiding Officers shall announce closure of their respective polling stations. Only those on the queue at 5.00pm will be allowed to vote.

At the Polling station, the Presiding Officer announces results for elective positions. Results are announced at the polling station in the following order: Presidential, member of the National Assembly, member of the county Assembly, Senator, county woman member to the national assembly, County governor. The Police are required to provide security personnel to safeguard the process of counting and tallying of the votes including announcement of results at the polling station and tallying centre.

3.7 Tallying and Declaration of Election Results

Tallying is a process which involves accurate collation and representation of votes cast for each candidate. It takes place at the tallying centre. Collation is the process of collecting and ordering votes cast for various candidates. Announcement is the pronouncement of the electoral results. Tallying centres for elections results are: Constituency tallying centre; County tallying centre; and National tallying centre.

At the Constituency tallying centre, the Returning Officers collates and announces the final results for four elective positions: President; Senator; County Woman Representative in the national assembly; and County Governor.

At the County tallying centre, the County Returning Officers collates and announce the final results for the Presidential election and the final results for three elective positions: Senator; County Woman Representative in the national assembly; County Governor.

At the National Tallying Centre, the Chairperson of the Commission verifies, tallies, announces and declares presidential results received from the constituencies. The Police are required to provide security to safeguard the process of counting and tallying of votes including transportation of election materials and equipment and election officials.

CHAPTER 4: ELECTION SECURITY

4.1 Introduction

Election security is a primary function of the Police to ensure the protection of citizens, communities, vulnerable and marginalized groups, organizations, and institutions against threats. Election security includes protection of all stakeholders, electoral activities and processes, election infrastructure and materials from harm or threat of harm to facilitate peaceful and democratic elections.

4.2 Importance of Election Security

Security during the election is critical, especially during campaigns, voting, vote counting and transmission of the results. A peaceful election environment facilitates a free, fair and credible election, and tranquil conditions in and around polling stations lessens problems that could compromise voter confidence, integrity of records, turnout or election results. Voters must be able to vote without fear and monitors must be able to perform their duties without intimidation. Candidates must be able to campaign without the fear that their supporters will be harmed.

4.3 Elements in Election Security

The Police is required to provide security for electoral operations, provide protection and assistance for purposes of facilitating peaceful and orderly elections, securing IEBC assets, equipment and acting on citizens and electoral officials reports on election malpractices in a timely manner. Election security require consideration of the following:

- i. Stakeholders: candidates, agents, voters, election officials, special groups (women, youth, persons with disabilities, elderly, minorities, marginalized), media personnel, accredited civil society representatives, and observers.
- ii. Electoral activities and processes: voter registration, nomination of candidates, electoral campaign, polling, counting of votes, verification of results, declaration of winners, petitions and appeals.
- iii. Facilities and materials: election offices, polling stations, tallying centres, campaign materials, ballots, warehouses and storage facilities.
- iv. Communication systems and information: relevant information and communication technologies used in voting, as well as counting, tallying and transmission of results.

Given the uniqueness of security considerations for each election, additional components of security agencies may be mobilized, including the Kenya Prison Service, Kenya Wildlife Service, Kenya Forest Service among others to support National Police Reserve all under the Command and Control of the Inspector General of the National Police Service.

4.4 Approach to Election Security

Election Security must be approached within the electoral cycle based on the understanding that an election is not an isolated one-day event. An electoral process comprises a series of interconnected elements and activities that occur before, during, and after election day. Each phase involves different challenges and demands. The next Chapter will look at Election Security Management using this approach as a tool.

CHAPTER 5: ELECTION SECURITY MANAGEMENT

5.1 Principles

The delivery of Election Security by the Police is guided by the following principles:

- i. Maintaining a secure and peaceful electoral environment and preserving law and order.
- ii. Impartiality: Police will not engage in politics, take sides or demonstrate preferential support for any specific party or candidate
- iii. Equal treatment and non-discrimination: Police will ensure equal protection for all participants throughout an electoral process.
- iv. Accountability: Police officers involved in the provision of election security services will be held accountable for their actions. They must respect and protect human rights.
- v. Rule of law: Police will carry its operations in accordance with the law.

With regard to elections, Police must not:

- i. Abuse their powers or unduly interfere in electoral process;
- ii. Misuse their powers/act outside the law
- iii. Display bias for or against any contestant or segment of the electoral population
- iv. Obstruct campaign freedoms or voting rights;
- v. Use their powers as a tool for intimidation;
- vi. Carry out arbitrary arrests or detentions;
- vii. Use excessive force;
- viii. Facilitate discriminatory enforcement of the law.

5.2 Election Security Management

Electoral Security Management is a process that involves assessment of security aspects pertaining to an election throughout the electoral cycle and measures put in place to ensure a safe and secure environment for the elections.

It is about all efforts aimed at creating an atmosphere free of fear, coercion, intimidation or manipulation on election day where voters are able to vote without fear and monitors are able to perform their duties without intimidation.

5.3 Election Security Management Objectives

Electoral security management objectives are:

- i. Maintaining physical security for elections;
- ii. Protection of polling stations, and tallying centers;
- iii. Protection of electoral materials and assets;
- iv. Protection of candidates, election officials, voters and monitors;
- v. Providing a safe and secure environment for voters to cast their votes

5.4 Election Security Management Process

Adequate election security begins with planning. The process involves assessment of security aspects pertaining to an election throughout the electoral cycle and measures put in place to ensure a safe and secure environment for the elections.

5.4.1 Assessment

The assessment is conducted to examines those security, political, social, economic factors that create underlying vulnerabilities for electoral conflict or violence to occur. Some of these factors can serve as early warning signs for potential conflict or violence. The assessment exercise also examines factors specific to an election that hold the potential as triggers to transform vulnerabilities into violence. The assessment identifies the historical factors of electoral violence in the three phases of the electoral cycle – pre-election, election day, and post-election. The analysis should identify victims, perpetrators, motives, tactics, locations (hotspots), and intensity. The assessment must include profiling of stakeholders and their roles.

5.4.2 Planning

Planning is conducted to develop interventions which addresses problems identified in the assessment. Planning examines security constraints, security priorities, security capacity limitations and other planning elements.

5.4.3 Action Planning

Action planning is conducted to identify activities to be undertaken by the Police as well as activities that may be implemented by other stakeholders. Action planning activities are presented by strategic objective, stakeholder, and phase of the electoral cycle when the activity is to be implemented. These activities are organized into a matrix to provide an overview of potential interventions throughout the course of the electoral cycle.

5.4.4 Operational Planning

Operational planning is conducted to coordinate security efforts and plan security operation and activities within the electoral cycle.

5.4.5 Early Warning

Early warning establishes signs, causes, perpetrators and potential victims of election related violence. Early warning signs of election related violence include:

- i. Physical attacks during the various phases of the electoral cycle
- ii. Destruction of property
- iii. Disruption of campaign meetings
- iv. Presence of organized criminal gangs
- v. Cover acts causing fear on the population
- vi. Verbal threats
- vii. Use of inflammatory, abusive or derogatory language during various phases of the electoral cycle

- viii. Publication and circulation of defamatory materials through print (e.g leaflets), electronic, social media

Possible Causes of Election Violence

- i. Incitement by a section of the election actors such as candidates, and political party activists
- ii. Zoning of certain areas by candidates, and political parties or criminal gangs
- iii. Subjective reporting by the media
- iv. Incitement through social media
- v. Misinformation amongst supporters of different political sides

Possible Perpetrators of Electoral Related Violence

- i. Criminal gangs
- ii. Supporters of Candidates
- iii. Some aspirants
- iv. Sympathizers of candidates bound to lose (sensing defeat)

Vulnerable Groups of Electoral Related Violence

- i. Women
- ii. Children
- iii. Elderly people

- iv. Persons with disabilities,
- v. Minority and marginalized groups

5.4.6 Monitoring and Evaluation

Monitoring and Evaluation creates data, identifies targets, and indicators to measure the effectiveness of Police response and interventions.

5.4.7 Deployment

Deployment process involves the determination of the number police officers or election security personnel and resources should be deployed, where and when needed. It is a process.

CHAPTER 6: ELECTION SECURITY PLANNING & COORDINATION

6.1 Election Security Operation Plan

During elections, all Police Commanders are required to prepare and submit Election Security Operation Plans for their respective areas of command. Election Security Operation Plans will be submitted by the Officer-in-Charge:

- i. Region
- ii. County
- iii. All Formed Units

The Election Security Operation Plans should be in word document format and in a format prescribed in the Election Security Operation Plan Template which can be obtained from the NPS Headquarters or from the Kenya Police Service's Directorate of Operation.

The attention of Police Commanders is particularly drawn to the guidelines on preparation of Election Security Operation Plan as contained in the Election Security Operation Plan Template.

6.2 Peace and Security Committee Meetings

During elections, Police Commanders will attend regular Peace and Security meetings in their respective areas of command to deliberate and review matters involving election security.

6.3 Stakeholders Election Security Meetings

Many stakeholders involved in elections will have a direct and varying role in supporting election security efforts. Awareness of, and consultation with, such actors and stakeholders, understanding their roles, and consistent efforts on the part of the police to work in close collaboration will be promoted during elections. Police Commanders at all levels should identify key stakeholders in their respective areas of command and attend stakeholders' meetings to deliberate on election security matters.

6.4 Inspector General Election Security Conference

During elections, the Inspector General and the Joint Service Board will convene election security Conference with Police Commanders.

6.5 Regional & County Election Security Meetings

During elections, the Regional & County Police Commanders will convene election security Meetings with Police Commanders in their respective areas of command. Such meetings may include other government agencies including the IEBC.

6.6 Sub-County Coordination and Collaboration Meetings

During elections, the Sub-County Police Commanders should attend regular stakeholders' engagement meetings in their respective areas of command with government agencies including the IEBC.

CHAPTER 7: COOPERATION WITH INDEPENDENT ELECTORAL AND BOUNDARIES COMMISSION

7.1 Duty to co-operate

The position regarding relationship between the Independent Electoral and Boundaries Commission (IEBC) and the National Police Service is clearly set out in Section 105 (2 and 3) of Election Act 2011: -

- i. The immediate responsibility for all acts which touch upon the conduct of an election rests upon the IEBC.
- ii. The Police have a triple function: first, the maintenance of law and order, secondly, provision of security during an election process and thirdly, the prevention, and detection of election offences and the bringing of offenders to justice.
- iii. In the discharge of their first function, the maintenance of law and order, the Police are under the overall and independent command of the Inspector General through the chain of command.

CHAPTER 12: COMMUNICATIONS

12.1 Role of Media

It is important that both the Media and the Police have a clear understanding on the role of each other during the election period. The media plays the following roles in enabling full public participation in elections:

- i. educating voters on how to exercise their democratic rights;
- ii. reporting on the development of an election campaign;
- iii. providing a platform for the political parties and candidates to communicate their message to the electorate;
- iv. providing a platform for the public to communicate their concerns, opinions, and needs to the parties and candidates, the election management body, the government and other voters, and even the police, and to interact on these issues;
- v. allowing parties and candidates to debate with each other; reporting results and monitoring vote counting and tallying; and

- vi. scrutinizing the electoral process in order to evaluate the fairness of the process.

12.2 Communication with the Media

The media is expected to maintain a high level of professionalism, accuracy and impartiality in their coverage during the elections. A cordial understanding and cooperation between the Media and Police is of immense mutual benefits; it is of no less an advantage to the public whom both should serve. At any moment, much of the information possessed by the Police Commanders is either of a secret or confidential nature imparted to them for official use only. Commanders have no authority to disclose such information to a third party for the following reasons:

- i. Security reasons: Nothing may be divulged regarding a subject which is classified as secret or officially withheld from publication, nor may any information be given which is likely if published to prejudice the safety of members of the Police or Security Agencies or prejudice the success of their operations,

- ii. Confidential reasons: No information may be given from official Police records and no statement may be disclosed which has been made to the Police by a third party,
- iii. General reasons: No information may be given which may affect either a specific or possible Police investigation or may interfere with the course of justice or the prosecution of an offender. No information may be given which would be likely to cause embarrassment to the relatives of a deceased or injured person, or to the relatives of any person involved in an occurrence with which the Police are concerned.

12.3 Release of Information to the Media

Police Commanders are authorized to give a general situation report or supplementary information verbally (but not in writing) to the Media when this is requested and only when such occurrence has already been reported to Service Headquarters, and which has been subsequently released to the Media on behalf of the Government.

CHAPTER 13: TRAINING & LECTURES

13.1 Election Security Training

The training of police officers on election security management is important and must be conducted during the election cycle. It is the objective of the Service that as many police officers are trained, retrained and offered refresher courses in collaboration IEBC and other agencies.

13.2 Training Content

The content of any training activities will be comprehensive and cover relevant election security operational aspects including electoral laws. The aim will be to establish a set of standards and principles on the rules of engagement for management of public safety and security during election cycle.

13.3 Lectures

Frequent lectures will be held for all personnel on all aspects of their duties as police officers during elections, particularly at Police Station Level. Such lectures will be held at least once monthly and will be attended by all available personnel, irrespective of their normal duties during the election cycle.

County and Formation Commanders will publish through the medium of their Weekly Orders, a regular monthly training programme for their respective commands during the election cycle. This programme will be published at least 4 months before polling day.

The report shall contain a summary of the Election Offences and Malpractices in each County and for the Republic as a whole compiled in accordance with the form stat issued from Service Headquarters.

14.3 Threat Assessment and Early Warning Reports

All Officers-in-Charge Police Stations, shall dispatch to their Sub-County Headquarters daily, comprehensive security threat assessment and early warning reports of all factors and early signs activities reported to their stations during the election period. The report shall be fully comprehensive and would contain essential details of threat assessment and early warning signs details.

On receipt of the threat assessment reports from the police stations, the Sub-County Commander or his/her deputy will consolidate all reported threats and furnish necessary information to his/her County Headquarters as soon as is practicable in a clear and detailed report.

County Headquarters will in turn consolidate the threat assessment reports received from the Sub-County and submit the same to reach Directorate of Operations at the Kenya Police Service Headquarters without unnecessary delay.

Critical security threats and incidents will be reported immediately to the Duty Officer, Police Headquarters by telephone/radio and later confirmed by way of a signal and included in the Security Threat Assessment Report.

14.4 Reports of Major Incidents

Matters of public disorder during elections shall be reported directly to the duty officer, Service Headquarters by the quickest available means and should not await the routine inclusion in the Threat Assessment Report as provided above. Such matters are, for instance when persons of public interest are victims or accused of involved in election offences, or malpractices or major incidents involving public safety and security namely:

- i. Hate Speech and Incitement
- ii. Political clashes
- iii. Civil disturbances
- iv. Serious public order incidents
- v. Assaults on political candidates

Whilst it is impossible to lay down exactly the cases or circumstance which should be the subject of immediate Election Security Report, it is, however, emphasized that it is at all times desirable that details of important matters should be submitted to Service Headquarters as soon as, if not sooner than, they are available to the media.
